

How children benefit from the program

The program aims to improve childrens' reading and communication skills by employing a simple method: reading to a dog. We know that reading out loud helps reading comprehension, but why should a kid read to a dog? Because reading to a dog is less scary than reading to a person. My hope is that my book "The Walk of Life" (the first one in the series) will encourage children to read bedtime stories to their dogs. I feel that children will benefit from the acceptance and comfort of the dog's presence, while getting much needed practice with their reading skills in a non-judgmental environment.

How dogs benefit from the program

Dogs will be very happy to just spend time with kids.
